

Blockchain & iberDok

Smart relationship

The traceability of your documents in the digital age

Companies in the service sector, beyond their nature, are managing an increasing volume of information and documentation.

Much of it is part of business, legal and commercial needs, and requires organizations to equip themselves with tools capable of generating digital documents and maintaining rigorous control over them.

iberDok

iberDok is a system for editing and generating documents and forms based on templates, with static and dynamic information objects, which facilitates both the on-demand generation of a single document or form in a guided and interactive way and the massive generation. iberDok includes the necessary tools for its management.

Blockchain technology emerges as an alternative to develop business models that require distributed information registration, data validation and confirmation, and regulation of participants during the process.

Blockchain

In view of the needs of dynamic, personalized and audited edition and the importance of a distributed and reliable record of the information, we have decided to evolve iberDok with the integration of Blockchain technology, with the clear objective of assuring from the origin and in the different stages the process of production and use of documents, being a reference for our clients in efficiency, security and follow-up.

Digital integration of document generation and management

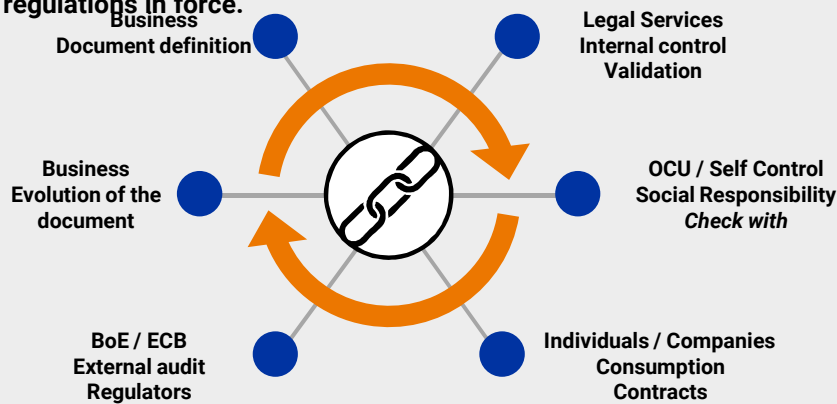

The evolution of iberDok offers our customers to centralize the generation of internal and business document templates in a single platform, simplifying both internal and external validation procedures, through the Blockchain block chain. From the initial generation of a document, it would be traced in the chain together with its evolution with the contributions of the teams involved in the validation and the institutions that audit it.

- Elimination of intermediaries. The information is stored in the network as a result of the execution of a transaction or smartcontract.
- The network validates and confirms the execution of the transaction.
- It guarantees the inalterability of the chain.
- Respect the regulations in force.

- Intelligent documents by customer target.
- Advanced design using layout tools.
- Allows on-demand or mass documents.
- Integration with Legacy systems. Platform and infrastructure independent web platform.
